- They are very conscious about the face mask mandate by the city. There is a wide variety of inventory. It is always fresh!
- There were three things I tried to buy at Safeway in Pullman that I couldn't get, but I felt certain that the co-op would have all three of them and I was right, you did. I had expected to buy a small jar of Vegemite at the Pullman Safeway and they were out of stock, but by going to the co-op I was able to get a large jar which is what I would have preferred any way. I also discovered that you carry a product I didn't think existed that I had discussed with my mother who I co-habitate with, earlier this same day. She is wanting to try non-dairy yogurt and would prefer to buy it in a large container (with more than just one serving) and I didn't remember ever seeing such a thing locally—buy you carry it! I only bought three things this time, but usually I buy more items than I did today. The reason I won't be shopping at the Moscow Co-op on my next grocery shopping trip is because a) I live in Pullman, b) I can get a lot of the things I need at the Pullman Safeway for a lower price, c) I only visit your store periodically, perhaps once a month and I usually stock up.
- I am new to the area and fairly newly vegan. The idea that the coop is here in Moscow is such a relief. There were so many options available to me without having to really scour the ingredient lists.
- MFC is walking distance from where I live. The bulk foods section is great. The bulk foods section is REALLY great.
- As always, it was a super easy trip. I picked up some unique beer/treats. I had a fantastic interaction with the cashier.
- I appreciate the variety of greens they offer in produce. The ripeness and freshness of the produce is best. Everyone is always helpful and friendly if questions.
- Had a busy day and it's really hot out. Went in looking for something easy to pop in the microwave and a cold bottle of wine. MFC has the best wine selection in Moscow. I found one of my favorites in the grab and go (black bean and chicken burritos). AND my very favorite cashier rang up my order.
- The Co-op has been a staple during my time in Moscow. I love the emphasis on local and fresh produce as well as the bulk section. There are also some really great prepared foods (garlic hummus!), although not always in stock (could also be due to COVID).

- Really appreciate the friendliness of the staff and the commitment to safety during the pandemic – everywhere else pales in comparison. Thank you!
- We love coming to Moscow on Tuesday each week to get our Senior discount and getting bread. Everyone is always cheery. We are glad you implemented the mask rule too. The bread is super! We also like to eat our lunch from there too – love the vegan pad Thai and barbecue tofu. Produce is always fresh. Too bad we will leave the area for the winter. Would love to have a Moscow coop in every town we stay in.
- Friendly, homey store, everyone is helpful, lots of staff on cashiers, never any wait time. Like the produces offered, prices are a tad high but that's to be expected from organic, healthy products. Prices are comparable if not better than other stores in town offering some of the same products.
- Staff are always friendly and helpful. Store is clean which makes me feel confident shopping during this time. The Coop always has what I need J
- I can find organic items across the board. Staff is very helpful, refilling bulk if they can, directing me to where I can find items in the store. Most of the hot food is super tasty.
- More items were in stock, good selection of products. Coffee on sale!
- The person in the meat department was very friendly and knowledgeable. He recommended a cut of beef ribs I have never tried before, and we loved it.
- Our checker Tracy was so friendly, welcoming and helpful. She waited while we retrieved our debit card from the car even. Right now the mask required policy makes me feel safer in the store.
- Love the local food.
- Still shopping at Rosauers for meat wrapped in paper instead of plastic, and for Hog Heaven sausages made with red pepper instead of black pepper, which is a common food allergen. We are boycotting your plastic-wrapped meats (throw-away/non-recyclable hard plastic trays, especially). Also boycotting yogurts and kefir in plastic containers, most also non-recyclable. Nancy's whole-milk kefir would be an excellent addition, since in paper cartons and excellent value & quality (same as the low-fat versions you already carry). Otherwise, we feel co-op staff are doing an outstanding job keeping things going during the COVID pandemic, especially positive & friendly customer rapport. Excellent new hiring too, both cashiers and floor staff, and produce section continues to get better & better! Very glad to be members, as versus 10 years or so ago. Consider raising entry-level pay (Bernie's $15/hr. is a good target), to ensure strong retention and as a way to build institutional memory & deep familiarity among all staff, both with products & services and customers/members, and also structure & operation of the business.

Operations Updates

- E-commerce
 - We're working with Kate Nelson to create an online ownership sales option.
 - We're also working on developing the tools to offer online case ordering.
- 2020 Holiday Closures
 - The Co-op is usually closed for business on Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day.
 - In addition, after reviewing several years of historic sales data, we've decided to be closed on both the day after Thanksgiving and the day after Christmas. Neither of these days are big days for grocery sales – plus, being closed two days in a row guarantees that all employees who would like to have a holiday break can at least have two days off.

The Board discussed Melinda's provided report. The Board discussed creating a standard operating procedure in response to COVID-19.
