

Congratulations!

You now own a grocery store with your friends!

A co-op is a special kind of business. It's locally owned and governed by the people who shop here, like you! When you're an owner of the Moscow Food Co-op, you're part of a community — one that has been promoting local farmers and small producers, supporting families, and investing in area non-profits for nearly 50 years. We're glad you joined us!

In 1973, we opened as The Good Food Store with just a few bulk bins and some big ideas for the future of business on the Palouse. Owner guidance and owner investment has helped our Co-op grow and expand to further our mission, and we appreciate your continued support. Your ownership supports not only the Moscow Food Co-op, but also the local economy and conscientious purchasing practices. Together, we can shift the focus toward local, sustainable products that reflect our passion for promoting the health of our community.

I look forward to owning this grocery store with you and making a difference together!

In cooperation,

Melinda C. Schab
